

Energy Consumption in Washington by Major Fuel*

*Measured in Trillion British thermal units (Tbtu). Biofuels are energy resources derived from biological materials such as wood and agriculture residues, animal manure, and municipal solid waste.

SOURCE: Washington State University Cooperative Extension Energy Program, (360-956-2092), Washington State Energy Use Profile, June 1996.